

Sing to music

Objective:

The goal of this activity is to promote self-expression, create joy and well-being, and improve the elderly's sense of empowerment. Singing is a wonderful form of self-expression and can be therapeutic for the elderly.

Description of how to do the activity:

- Choose a quiet and comfortable place where the elderly can feel relaxed and focused.
- Collect a playlist of favorite tunes or songs that have special meaning for the elderly. These can be different genres and styles depending on their tastes.
- Ask the elderly to choose a song from the playlist that they feel comfortable with and that they enjoy singing.
- Play the chosen song and encourage the elderly to sing out loud and express themselves with their voice.
- If they feel like it, they can also try moving to the music with simple movements such as clapping their hands or rocking to the beat.

What is needed to carry out the activity:

- A music player or computer with speakers to play the music.
- A collection of favorite songs or songs with personal meaning to the older person.
- A comfortable and quiet place to sing.
